

Cookies Policy

Introduction

Our goal is to ensure that all users are familiar with all our data protection and privacy practices and, in this way, have all the information they need to navigate correctly.

What exactly are these cookies?

These cookies we are talking about are not those delicious American cookies, but they are very good too. Cookies are text files created by websites that can store data related to browsing habits, search preferences, and other information, helping to personalize your access.

How does this work in practice?

Imagine a restaurant you go too often. Upon entering the door, you are taken to your favorite table, your juice and your favorite dish are served and, to finish, that strong coffee. When you leave, your car is already there at the door waiting for you. All this without you having to do anything.

Cookies work something like this, predicting your preferences and choices. Helping the website remember your actions over time and making your browsing experience as pleasant as possible.

Why do we use cookies?

We use cookies to facilitate and improve navigation, recognize users' preferences, and adapt the website to their interests and needs.

With cookies, we understand how the user interacts with our content and, in this way, we learn from their behavior, offer personalized content and improve their experience.

What cookies do we collect?

Personalization	Cookies that allow us to facilitate your next login process. By accepting them, you are opting for a personalized experience.
-----------------	---

But isn't it dangerous to have my information stored?

It is not dangerous. All your information collected on our websites, such as emails and geo localization, is protected by our certified security system.

I don't like cookies, how do I turn them off?

You can restrict, block or delete cookies through your browser preferences. In each browser, the operation is different. To find out how to manage it, see the settings on cookies in each of the browsers:

Internet Explorer / Firefox / Google Chrome / Safari

Do not forget that cookies allow you to have a better experience on our websites and, without them, you will be prompted to include your email every time you login.

Final dispositions

We warn that this Cookies Policy may be modified at any time by S3 Caceis. Changes will take effect shortly after publication, and you will be notified. By continuing to browse, you agree to these changes.

If any changes require your consent, we will ask you to provide that new consent. We encourage you to visit our Cookie Policy frequently to stay informed of any updates or changes.
